The information below is intended to clarify issues related to the use of data collected through our surveys.

The Centre for Institutional Research is a structural unit of HSE University, and all its employees are university staff. In collecting and analysing data, we adhere to high standards of data confidentiality.

- Most studies conducted by the CIR are confidential but not anonymous. In our research, we use personalised links to questionnaires to improve data quality (eg to prevent multiple submissions of the same survey, to customise the questionnaire for each respondent, etc).
- At the same time, respondents' answers are anonymised. The datasets obtained through surveys do not contain names or other personal data.
- Research results are provided only in an aggregated form.
- No individual respondent characteristics that could reveal their identity appear in reports or any other materials.
